

December 2016

Emory Libraries magazine debut issue now online

Emory Libraries published a new magazine in November, mailing more than 7,000 print copies to donors, alumni and friends of the Libraries, as well as members of the Emory community. The magazine is now online, and we invite you to read it and share the link with others. This issue focused on the many ways Emory faculty use and partner with our libraries and their services.

Click here to read the Emory Libraries magazine online

Email your name and mailing address to join the magazine subscription list

All's Well That Ends Well: Two First Folio closing events set for December 5

It's hard to believe we'll bid adieu to Shakespeare's First Folio soon (the book remains on display at the Carlos Museum until Dec. 10). We are excited to sponsor two events at the Carlos as a closing celebration, both of which are open to the public at no charge.

4 p.m.: "The Wonder of Will"
Michael Witmore, the director of the Folger Shakespeare Library (which provided the First Folio to Emory), will discuss Shakespeare's legacy and his library's extensive collection of the Bard in print.

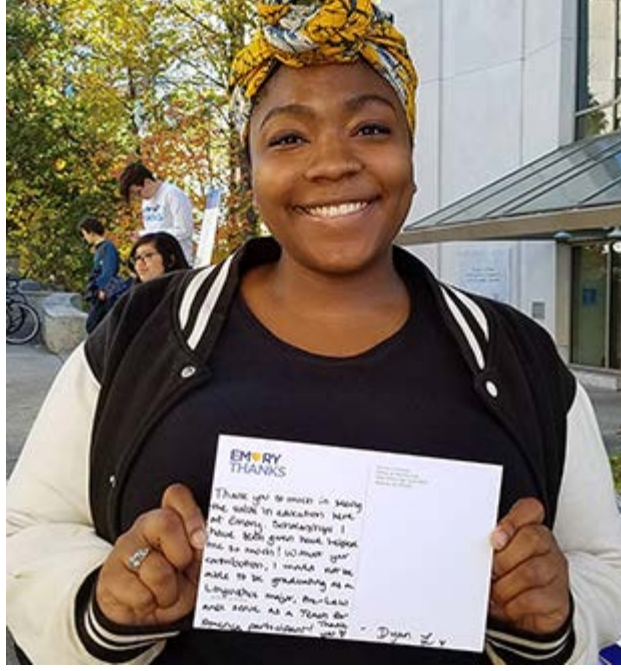

7 p.m.: "The Bard and Poetry"
This event will feature former Poet Laureate Natasha Trethewey and award-winning poets Kevin Young and Jericho Brown in a night of Shakespearean poetry. This will mark Young's last public reading at Emory before he leaves for his new position as director of the Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture in Harlem.

Click here for more information on these events

Michael Witmore (top); Natasha Trethewey (above).

Emory Libraries shows donors appreciation on EmoryThanks Day

Many thanks to our Emory donors for our library resources, which enable students to power through their studies.

Emory University held a campus-wide day of appreciation for its donors with EmoryThanks Day on Nov. 17.

Hundreds of students, faculty and staff wrote postcards to donors, expressing thanks and describing the impact of donors' generosity. Our staff set up a station outside Woodruff Library where the thankful filled out postcards and posed for pictures for our social media pages. Thank you, Emory Libraries donors!

View the Libraries #EmoryThanks photos on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram

ECDS launches new Holocaust Denial on Trial site

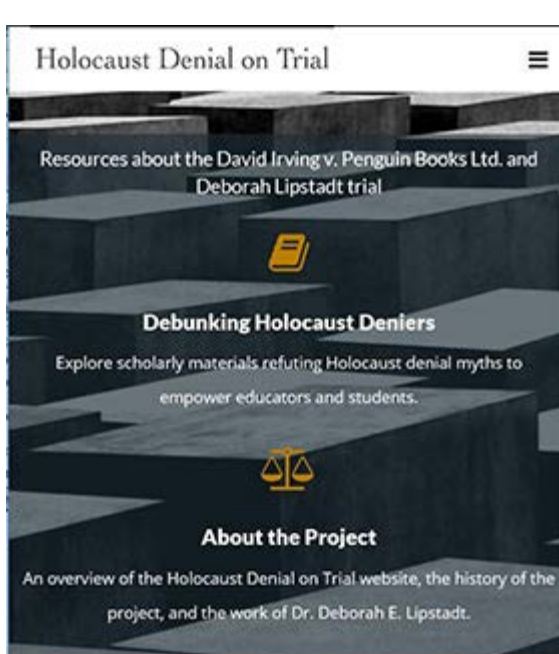

Emory Center for Digital Scholarship redesigned a new interactive site for Holocaust Denial on Trial (HDOT), Emory professor Deborah Lipstadt's website that refutes the claims of Holocaust deniers.

The site, created in 2005 in partnership with Emory's Tam Institute for Jewish Studies, includes extensive research and legal material generated during the libel proceedings in the British courts that began in 1996 against Lipstadt filed by Holocaust denier David Irving.

ECDS's work included reorganizing more than 8,000 pages of court transcripts and materials into searchable and more user-friendly pages.

Read the Emory Report article about the ECDS work on the HDOT website

Visit the HDOT website

Emory Libraries in the news

Shakespeare's First Folio comes to Emory

The first collected edition of William Shakespeare's plays will be at the Carlos Museum from November 5 through December 11

November 2016 | Text | Media | © Dana Milnes

The visiting exhibition of Shakespeare's First Folio at the Carlos Museum generated a flurry of media coverage in November:

The Atlanta Journal-Constitution ran a pair of articles – one on the rarity of the First Folio on myAJC.com, and one on the book's climate-controlled, escorted journey to Emory University in the newspaper and on AJC.com.

WABE 90.1 interviewed Rose Library director Rosemary M. Magee and Emory English professor and World Shakespeare Project director Sheila Cavanagh about the First Folio.

Atlanta Magazine featured a story with fascinating by-the-numbers facts about the First Folio.

Find more articles and clips on our media coverage page.

From readings to receptions, don't miss a single event. Get updates sent to your phone or email, or add a reminder directly to your calendar. See what's coming up and choose an option that suits you.

To subscribe to this newsletter, click here to email your name and address.

Read our latest news, events, exhibitions, and headlines here.

View previous issues of Keywords here.

Help us inspire creative expression, scholarship, and new knowledge. Contribute to Emory Libraries.