

September 2015

Newly renovated MARBL opens

MARBL's new reception area and main hall. Credit: Emory Photo/Video.

After more than a year of construction, a completely renovated Manuscript, Archives, and Rare Book Library (MARBL) opened on Aug. 24 for research and instructional use. Opening celebrations and events will be announced in the near future.

The new space features plenty of natural light through arched windows and glass walls, an expanded reading room, updated technology, enhanced public spaces, room for interactive exhibits, and sweeping views of the campus and the Atlanta skyline.

Read more about the new MARBL and view photo slideshow

Bobby Jones' grandson, Bob Jones IV, to speak at Emory Sept. 17

The grandson of legendary golfer Bobby Jones will speak at Emory University about the psychological skills his grandfather developed that enabled him to excel at the game of golf – and at life.

Atlanta-area psychologist Bob Jones IV will present "In the Mind of the Master" at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 17, 2015, in the Jones Room on Level 3 of the Robert W. Woodruff Library at Emory University. Jones added he will also reveal the truth behind some of the legendary stories about his grandfather.

Open to the public at no charge, the event is in conjunction with the exhibition "Bobby Jones: The Game of Life," which remains on view through Nov. 30, 2015, in the Schatten Gallery on Level 3 of the library.

Find more details about the event

Read about the Bobby Jones exhibition

Bob Jones IV

Student Digital Life offers new services for students

Students can now print from their laptops to any designated building printer. Credit: Emory LITS.

Student Digital Life (SDL) at Emory University is debuting new services and spaces for the 2015-16 academic year that will expand opportunities for learning and creativity and increase space for studying and collaboration.

New services include EaglePrint, the campus-wide wireless printer system; MediaLab, with software for audio and video editing and website creation; TechLab, which includes 3-D printing and makerspace; and other student-focused services.

Learn more about the Student Digital Life offerings

Check out the Student Digital Life homepage

Successful crowdfunding effort raises $12,000 to preserve LGBT history

Emory Library and Information Technology Services (LITS) is pleased to announce its successful completion of one of Emory's first "Momentum" crowdfunding campaigns.

The effort raised a total of $11,975 – well past the $10,000 goal set at the beginning of the campaign. The Joseph W. Blount Center for Health and Human Rights at Emory's Rollins School of Public Health provided a matching donation of $5,000.

More than sixty donors contributed to the capturing of oral histories from leaders in Atlanta's fight against HIV/AIDS in the 1980s. These recordings will join the LGBT collections in MARBL.

Read more about the project scope and crowdfunding effort

Make a gift to the Emory Libraries

Emory Libraries' busy summer of renovations

The Science Commons and the science library service desk in the new Atwood Chemistry addition. Credit: Emory LITS.

It's been a busy summer of renovations for Emory Libraries, which has completed all of its major renovation projects that were scheduled to open in time for fall semester, which began Aug. 26. The Library Service Center, a joint project with Georgia Institute of Technology libraries, continues on schedule for its planned opening in spring 2016.

Find out the details of the Libraries' renovations projects

Tim Bryson retires from Emory Libraries with 16 years of service

South Asian Studies librarian Tim Bryson will retire Sept. 5 from Emory Libraries. For the last 16 years, he has worked with faculty in South Asian Studies and with his colleagues in the library to build our collection, notably in Hindi, Sanskrit, and a few other vernaculars, as well as English.

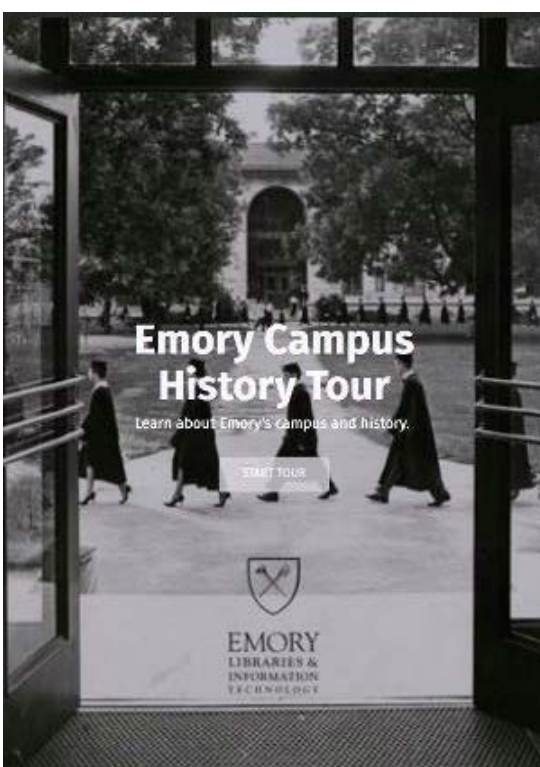

He also built the Libraries' collections in Tibetan studies as well as religious studies and non-Western religions, including Hinduism and Buddhism.

Read more about Tim's contributions to Emory Libraries

Tim Bryson

Mobile campus tour launch and panel event set for Sept. 19

A screenshot of the tour's homepage.

Two Strandmark, fellows, Anne Donlon and Matt Strandmark, have combined history and technology to create a tour of the Emory University campus and Emory Village that is accessible by smartphones and tablets, and the Libraries will launch the project with a panel discussion in mid-September.

"Atlanta's Living History," presented by Emory historians and researchers and open to the public at no charge, is set for Saturday, Sept. 19, from 1-2 p.m. in the Jones Room on Level 3 of the Woodruff Library.

The Emory Campus History Tour (<http://tour.emory.edu>) uses historical materials housed in MARBL to lead visitors on a directed tour of the historic Druid Hills campus, which was deeded to Emory in 1915. Maps, video clips, and images combine with the narrative to tell a story of the campus and its development throughout the 20th century.

Learn more about the tour and the event

Emory Libraries in the news

We're making headlines in Atlanta and around the world:

Golf Digest noted the Bobby Jones traveling exhibit in St Andrews in an article about off-course attractions at The Open Championship.

Emory Report featured a story about MARBL's literary archives inspiring a new generation of visiting international poets.

Emory News Center focused on the library's exhibit of artists' books from MARBL's recently acquired Nexus Press collection in a recent article.

Find more articles and clips on our media coverage page.

Emory's literary archives inspire next generation poets

By Kelsey Wilkins | Emory Report | Apr. 25, 2015

Students, like Taylor, engage with the work of the past and present in the library's Manuscript, Archives, and Rare Book Library (MARBL) as young poets on campus for the 2015 annual Drive New Voices.

From readings to receptions, don't miss a single event. Get updates sent to your phone or email, or add a reminder directly to your calendar. See what's coming up and choose an option that suits you.

Read our latest news, learn about our events and exhibitions, and see how the Emory Libraries are making headlines here.

View previous issues of Keywords here.

Help us inspire creative expression, scholarship, and new knowledge. Contribute to Emory Libraries.