

June 2017

Epitaphs for the Living exhibit opens June 15, opening event is June 22

An emotional exhibit of photos taken by Atlanta-area photographer Billy Howard of people living with HIV/AIDS in the 1980s will open Thursday, June 15, in the Corridor Gallery of Emory University's Robert W. Woodruff Library.

A conversation with Howard about the photographs, led by exhibit curator and Stuart A. Rose Manuscript Archives and Rare Book Library curator Randy Gue, will take place at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, June 22, in the Jones Room on Level 3 of the library. The event is open to the public at no charge.

Photo by Billy Howard

Read more about the exhibit and conversation

Undergraduate research award winners feted

Winners of the 2017 undergraduate research awards are pictured with University Librarian Yolanda Cooper (far left); Ron Schuchard, English professor emeritus for whom the Schuchard Prize is named (third from left); and Rosemary Magee, director of the Rose Library (third from right).

The Woodruff and Rose libraries honored 15 students who won undergraduate research awards at a brunch last month. The awards were granted for papers that demonstrated the best use of library resources and primary source materials, said University Librarian Yolanda Cooper.

The fascinating research paper topics included drone strikes against terrorists and civilian casualties, aviation and Nazism, the history of Emory's dental school, Latin American migrant children in Georgia schools, and transgender issues.

Read more about the winners and their research paper topics

Graduating Oxford library student workers choose books for the collection

Every spring, the Oxford College Library asks its graduating student employees to choose a book to add to the library's collection. In the blog entry, an insightful read that's linked below, each student talks about why they chose the book they did, what they will miss about Oxford, and what they liked the most about working in the library.

Learn more about the students' book choices and their thoughts on the Oxford library

Pictured are some of the graduating student employees at the Oxford College Library. Photo courtesy Oxford College Library.

BrowZine license provides access to hundreds of journals for Emory

Some of the e-journals accessible through the BrowZine app, available to current Emory students and faculty.

Emory Libraries have subscribed to BrowZine for a few years, and in that time, the vast array of specialized journals in medicine, nursing, allied health, public health, and biomedical sciences has grown rapidly. The app enables faculty and students to create a personalized library of online journals to keep up with the current literature. Visit the Woodruff Health Sciences Center Library's blog entry linked below to access a list of participating publishers and a link to the Emory login portal in the BrowZine app.

Read more about BrowZine's scientific journal offerings at Emory University

Emory Libraries in the news

Filling the gaps in the narrative: a conversation with curator Pellom McDaniels III

OutOnWeb - May 12, 2017 in Art-Design, Art, Books, Presses

We're making headlines in Atlanta and around the world:

ArtsATL.com featured a story about Rose Library curator Pellom McDaniels III, his recent research award, the 2014 exhibit "What Must Be Remembered," and black history.

McDaniels was also quoted in a Time.com article about the history of African American jockeys in the Kentucky Derby.

American Libraries magazine ran an article about the Library Service Center, the joint facility that houses the shared collections of Emory Libraries and the Georgia Tech Library.

Find more articles and clips on our media coverage page.

From readings to receptions, don't miss a single event. Get updates to your phone or email, or add a reminder directly to your calendar. See what's coming up and choose an option that suits you.

To subscribe to this newsletter, email your name and address here.

Read about our latest news, events, exhibitions, and headlines here.

View previous issues of Keywords here.

Help us inspire creative expression, scholarship, and new knowledge. Contribute to Emory Libraries.